FIRST NATIONS VOICE ACT 2023

SECTIONS 20 AND 37

*First Nations Voice Code of ConductPurpose

The First Nations Voice Act 2023 (the Act) provides for a Code of Conduct (the Code) for the Local First Nations Voices and for the State First Nations Voice.

This Code establishes standards for First Nations Voice members' behaviour and conduct, to ensure trust and confidence in the operation of the First Nations Voice from the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people and communities they are elected to represent as well as other members of the public. The Code is also to ensure the safety and wellbeing of First Nations Voice members.

Legislative Basis

This Code, for members of the Voices, is published by the Minister under sections 20(1) and 37(1) of the Act.

Sections 20(2) and 37(2) of the Act states that members of the Local First Nations Voice (Local Voice) and State First Nations Voice (State Voice) must comply with the Code.

A reference in the Code to the "Voices" is a reference to both the State Voice and the Local Voices.

It is the personal responsibility of each member of the Voice to ensure that they are familiar with, and comply with, the standards in the Code at all times.

Code of Conduct – First Nations Voice

PART 1 – PRINCIPLES

A - Cultural Traditions and Protocols

First Nations people have been practicing, watching, reflecting and strengthening their legal systems for a very long time. This has helped these nations to adapt and change and to survive and thrive for over 60,000 years. Necessarily there are occasions when in the context of their own unique custom, these traditions and protocols can be shared.

B - General Expectations

Members will act in good faith to support the principles and objectives of the Act.

Voice members will, at all times, treat others with respect and courtesy when carrying out functions and activities which are related to the office of a member of a Voice.

Members will not at any time act in a manner that a reasonable person would view as bringing them, or the Voices into disrepute; or that is otherwise improper or disgraceful.

In accordance with sections 19 and 36 of the Act, a member of a Voice must at all times act honestly in the performance of the functions of their office, whether within or outside the State.

Voice members will comply with all legislative requirements of their role and abide by this Code.

In addition to the general expectations, the following headings within Part 2 set out specific behavioural standards with which Voice members must comply.

PART 2 – BEHAVIOURAL STANDARDS

This part of the Code of Conduct sets out the specific behavioural standards with which Members must comply.

A - Conflicts of Interest

Voice members are elected to represent First Nations people within their local community, and if on the State Voice, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people across South Australia.

Voice members must therefore not be involved in discussions or decisions where there is a conflict between these official duties and the members' personal, financial or other interests.

A conflict arises when the ability of a member to perform the duties of their role is or could be affected by their personal or financial interest or that of a family member or an associate. This is sometimes referred to as incompatibility between professional duties and personal interests.

There may also be a potential conflict of interest where there is a real or substantial possibility of conflict.

It is not necessary for any person to derive any material or other benefit in order for an actual or potential conflict of interest to exist.

Voice members must:

- avoid conflicts of interest and apparent conflicts of interest between their private interests and their official functions;
- ensure their personal or financial interests do not influence or interfere with the performance of their role;
- declare any actual or potential conflicts of interest as soon as they arise or at the earliest available opportunity to the relevant Presiding Members and Voice Secretariat;
- where necessary, take reasonable steps to resolve any actual or potential conflicts of interest and advise the Presiding Members and Voice Secretariat of the steps taken;
- ensure the interests of family members, friends or associates do not influence the performance of their duties.

B - Use of Public Resources

To support Voice members to undertake their functions, the South Australian government will provide some resources to members. This includes, for example, IT equipment such as laptops. As these are public resources, there are rules about how these resources are used.

Voice members must:

- only use the public resources and equipment provided to them by virtue of their office to carry out their duties and must not use the resources for private benefit;
- follow any guidelines or rules that apply to the use of those resources and equipment;
- take steps to ensure that reasonable care is taken of any public resources and equipment provided;
- inform the Voice Secretariat at the earliest available opportunity of any incident which results in damage to resources;
- return all public resources and equipment provided to them to the Voice Secretariat as soon as a member leaves office.

The Government retains ownership of the public resources provided to First Nations Voice members.

C - Gifts and Benefits

The management of any offers of gifts, benefits and hospitality by elected members is a practical demonstration of integrity, impartiality and accountability. It allows the community to be confident that the Voices are making decisions and providing advice free from favouritism, influence and conflicts of interest.

Voice members must:

- not seek or knowingly accept gifts or benefits for themselves or others that could be reasonably perceived as influencing them in the performance of their functions;
- must take reasonable steps to disclose all gifts and benefits received in connection with their official duties, in accordance with the requirements for the disclosure of pecuniary interests through a register maintained by the Voice Secretariat;
- there is a tradition in Australian First Nations cultures of exchanging gifts of cultural significance, during times when a group or leader visits another group. Such exchanges come from a basis of acknowledging or honoring visitors. Voice members must:

- not disclose information about issues, facts and circumstances that they know is confidential or where a reasonable person in the circumstances would know the information is confidential;

Not all breaches of the Code will result in removal from office. This does not, however, mean that compliance with Code should be treated as optional.
