Architectural Practice Board of South Australia

Professional Indemnity Insurance Guidance Note 1

Compulsory Professional Indemnity Insurance

Professional indemnity insurance protects professionals from claims arising from legal liability for breach of their professional duty by reason of negligent act, error or omission. The policy ordinarily covers an architect whether or not there has in fact been any negligence. By providing this protection for architects, professional indemnity insurance also protects the consumer and the public at large.

Many registered architects in South Australia already have professional indemnity insurance. The purpose of this note is to inform those who do not have insurance that the Architectural Practice Act 2009 (which came into force on 1 January 2011), now makes it compulsory for anyone in South Australia wishing to register as an architect, or to continue to provide services as a registered architect to either have this insurance in place themselves, or to make sure that they are covered by their employer's policy.

Sections 28(1) (a) to (d) of the Act deal with the requirements for registration as an architect, and Section 28(1)(c) states that, unless the Board gives an exemption, any person applying for registration must satisfy the Board that they are:

"...insured against civil liabilities that might be incurred by the person in connection with the provision of services as a registered architect."

Section 59 of the Act prohibits any registered architect from providing services as a registered architect unless insured or indemnified against civil liabilities that might be incurred by the person in connection with the provision of architectural services.

Any architect who provides architectural services without having professional indemnity insurance in place could be subject to disciplinary proceedings for unprofessional conduct.

Amount of Insurance Cover

The Act does not specify a minimum amount of professional indemnity insurance cover. An architect must be insured against civil liabilities "...in a manner and to an extent approved by the Board...". The Board considers that any architect applying for registration should have in place as a minimum requirement, professional indemnity insurance of $1 Million. However, each architect will have to form their own view and, if necessary, seek advice about whether that amount is sufficient to meet the civil liabilities in respect of any particular practice, project and/or professional service undertaken.

Insurance Information to be provided

Information about professional indemnity insurance cover is to be provided to the Board on the first application for registration and for each renewal of registration. A copy of a Certificate of Currency is to be provided with every application. Employees, including public sector employees, can submit a letter from their employer naming them as an insured employee and attaching the applicable Certificate of Currency. When investigating any complaint concerning the professional conduct of any architect, the Board will also require the architect to produce evidence of current professional indemnity insurance cover.

Exemptions

The Board may grant exemptions from the requirement for professional indemnity insurance. The Act does not specify any particular circumstances when exemptions apply but leaves it to the discretion of the Board to decide if and when exemptions are appropriate. The starting point must be that there will be very limited circumstances in which an exemption will be allowed where the person intends to provide architectural services. That person will have to satisfy the Board that there are exceptional reasons for an exemption to apply.

For those categories of persons who wish to be registered as an architect but do not provide architectural services in South Australia such as:

- retired architects
- architects practising exclusively outside of South Australia (overseas or interstate)

- architects taking time off from work for personal reasons such as maternity, paternity or carers leave an exemption from the requirement to obtain professional indemnity insurance is more likely. However, advice should be obtained from your insurance broker as to whether 'run off' insurance is required in order to meet any on-going obligations from previous projects, advice or professional services undertaken before seeking the exemption.

An exemption granted in any circumstances will be limited in time to the date of the next renewal and may be subject to conditions, such as the architect having to inform their clients about the absence of any professional indemnity insurance cover or that it is noted on the registration certificate that the architect is exempt from having professional indemnity insurance cover. A statutory declaration accompanied by substantiating documentation will be required the first and each subsequent time the exemption is sought (including on each renewal application) stating that the person making the application will not provide any architectural services whilst exempt.

An exemption will not be granted when the application for exemption is based solely on the cost of insurance.

Frequently Asked QuestionsWhy do I need professional indemnity insurance when I only undertake small jobs?

The widening of contractual liability in recent years has meant that even a small job can give rise to a significant claim.

There is not necessarily a link between the level of fee income and the size of a claim. The key issue is the extent of the loss that might result from any mistake. Reputable insurance brokers experienced in providing professional indemnity insurance can advise on realistic minimum levels of cover relevant to your particular situation or circumstances.

Do I need cover for private jobs outside my employment?

Yes, your employer's cover will not cover you for work carried out on your own behalf. If you provide architectural services on your own behalf, you need to get appropriate cover.

Do I need cover when I am giving advice on a pro bono basis for community groups, family or friends?

Regardless of whether a professional person provides advice at no charge, or for an exchange of services or other benefit, they still have the same duty of care to their client, are exposed to the same liabilities, and can be sued for negligence. Architects in this situation should seek advice from a reputable insurance broker experienced in providing professional indemnity insurance.

Do I have to show clients a copy of my professional indemnity insurance policy?

The amount of information an architect provides to clients regarding professional indemnity insurance cover should be negotiated between the parties. However dispute or uncertainty can be avoided or minimised if architects advise their clients of the extent of their insurance to ensure that the amount of cover meets their client's minimum expectations.

It is not uncommon for an architect to provide a Certificate of Currency for professional indemnity insurance to a client as evidence of cover.

Please contact the Board if you require further information.

Architectural Practice Board of South Australia

Use of the title “Architect” and its derivatives

Guidance Note 2

The title Architect is a valuable and prestigious one, earned only after demonstration of high levels of competence and knowledge. For that reason, use of the title is restricted by legislation.

The primary purpose of the Architectural Practice Act 2009 (the Act) is to register architects, to regulate the practice of architecture and to protect the public interest.

The regulation of architects is governed by the Act a copy of which is available from the offices of the Board, or from the Boards website www.archboardsa.org.au

Some people are unaware that the title “Architect” is restricted in use by law in all Australian States and Territories (and most overseas countries) to practitioners registered with the registration boards established under State Acts of Parliament. The use of the title “Architect” and its derivatives by those not entitled to it frequently leads to formal complaints to the Architectural Practice Board of South Australia and the consequent expenditure of time and occasionally legal resources as the matter is resolved.

The holding of a degree in architecture alone does not allow a person or organisation to use the title “Architect”.

The most usual method of obtaining registration is for an applicant to acquire:-

- a minimum of 5 years approved academic study and

- a minimum of two years supervised and logged practical experience in a registered architect’s office and
- a pass in all sections of the Architectural Practice Examination.

The maintenance of strict standards which are enforced by a statutory authority rather than a professional body is regarded as extremely important in allowing consumers to make an informed choice and allowing Australian architects to gain overseas commissions. In addition our local universities would not be able to attract overseas students to architecture courses without this statutory recognition.

Section 38 of the Act provides that it is illegal in South Australia to hold out a person, partnership or body corporate as an architect unless they are registered with the Board in South Australia. The maximum penalty is $50,000 or imprisonment for 6 months.

Some limited exceptions are provided under Section 41 of the Act. Certain titles and descriptions are available in South Australia for example “Landscape Architect”, “Naval Architect” or “Computer Systems Architect”.

A person holding an architectural qualification may describe himself or herself as holding that qualification.

The Board has become aware of an increasing number of instances where individuals who have graduated from a tertiary institution with a degree in architecture, but who are not registered, describing themselves as 'graduate architects'.

This is an offence against the Act. However, university graduates may use the term 'graduate of architecture' or 'graduate of architectural studies' without being in breach of the Act.

Please contact the Board if you require further information.

Frequently Asked Questions

I have a degree in architecture can I call myself an Architect?

No, It is the law in South Australia, as in the other states and territories of Australia, that only people who are registered as architects may use the title "architect" or description such as "architectural" which derive from it.

Can I use the title "Graduate Architect"?

No, this would be an offence against the Architectural Practice Act 2009. However University graduates may use the term "Graduate of Architecture" or "Graduate of Architectural Studies" without being in breach of the Act.

Can I use the post-nominal of my tertiary qualification without being in breach of the Act?

Yes, the use of the approved post nominal for your tertiary qualification is permitted provided you do not use them in such a way as to imply that you are an architect.

E.g. B Arch or M Arch is permitted

I have retired or ceased to practice can I still call myself an architect?

Yes, provided you maintain your registration with the Board. A reduced registration fee and an exemption from the Professional Indemnity Insurance requirement may be available in some circumstances. Please refer to the Board website www.archboardsa.org.au for further details.

I am registered in another Australian State or Territory; can I use the title Architect in South Australia?

Not until you are registered in South Australia as an architect, please complete an application for registration under Mutual Recognition. An application form is available from the Board's website www.archboardsa.org.au or by contacting the Board's office.

I am registered as an architect do I have to register my company or partnership also?

Yes, if the company or partnership wish to use the title architect they must also be registered with the Board to practise in South Australia.

JAMES E. BAILEY, Registrar, Architectural Practice Board of South Australia
